

Default Rate by Education / Employment

gender Female Male

Loan Default Distribution

Loan Grade Risk

loan_grade A B C D E F G

Default Rate by Country

country UK USA Canada

education_level	gender	Count of loan_status
High School	Male	6604
High School	Female	6581
Bachelor	Male	5734
Bachelor	Female	5656
Master	Male	3290
Master	Female	3218
PhD	Female	755
PhD	Male	743
Total		32581

country	Count of loan_status	Average of person_income
UK	10944	66305.94
USA	10852	66040.64
Canada	10785	65874.77
Total		66074.85

33K Total Borrowers	27.73 Average Age	4.79 Average Employment	66.07K Average Income
---	---	---	---

Age Distribution

Distribution of Default Borrowers by Income Group

Default Risk by Education Level

Default Risk by Marital Status

Key Insight

- Medium-income borrowers account for the largest share of default cases.
- Single borrowers exhibit higher default rates than married borrowers.
- Higher education levels generally correlate with lower default risk.

Loan Grade Risk

loan_status_label ● Default

Loan Purpose Risk

loan_status_label ● Default

Interest Rate Risk

Interest Rate Band ● 15%+ ● 13-15% ● 11-13% ● 5-7% ● 9-11% ● 7-9%

Loan Term Risk

Loan Amount Risk

Loan Amount Band ● 5K-10K ● 0-5K ● 10K-15K ● 15K-20K ● 20K-25K ● 25K-30K ● 30K+

Key Insight

- Loan Grade D presents the highest default risk.
- Higher interest rates are associated with increased default probability.
- Larger loan amounts moderately increase credit risk.

33K Total Borrowers	27.73 Average Age	9.59K Average of loan_amnt	0.22 Default_Rate
------------------------	----------------------	-------------------------------	----------------------

Default Rate by Debt-to-Income Risk Group

Income Group Medium Low High Very High

Loan Affordability Risk Analysis

DTI_Risk_Group Low Medium High Very High

Average Loan Amount by Income Group and Loan Status

loan_status_label Default Non-Default

Default Rate by Loan-to-Income Risk Group

loan_status_label Default Non-Default

Key Insight: Borrowers with higher debt burden and larger loan-to-income ratios show greater default risk, suggesting that affordability metrics should be prioritized in loan approval and manual review policies.

8.04

Average of open_accounts

5.80

Average of cb_person_cred_hist_length

0.51

Average of past_delinquencies

Default Rate by Past Delinquencies

Default Rate by Credit Utilization

Default Rate by Credit History Band

Default Rate by Person Default

Key Insight: Borrowers with weaker credit histories and higher credit utilization are more likely to default.

Risk Segment Distribution

Average Loan Amount by Risk Segment

Average of loan_status by Risk Segment

Average Income by Risk Segment

- Key Insights
- High-risk borrowers exhibit the highest default rates and larger debt burdens.
 - Medium-risk customers account for the largest borrower segment.
 - Low-risk borrowers maintain higher average income and lower debt-to-income ratios.
 - Risk segmentation can support differentiated lending and approval strategies.